

National Rural Transportation Peer Learning Conference

Exhibitor and Sponsor Opportunities

April 24 – 26, 2013
Greenville, SC

Connect | Share | Network

Join local, regional, and state transportation practitioners in Greenville, South Carolina for this national summit event. The National Rural Transportation Peer Learning Conference is expected to attract 150 transportation planners and other professionals, policy makers, officials, and other stakeholders. The audience typically includes directors and technical staff of regional planning and economic development organizations, state department of transportation staff (including individuals from planning, transit, safety, and freight offices), and U.S. DOT and other federal agency representatives. The sessions and workshops offered during the conference will touch on many topics and issues relevant to today's rural and small metropolitan transportation planners and service providers.

As a conference exhibitor or sponsor, your organization will be listed in the conference program, in pre-conference marketing materials, and on the conference website, receiving hundreds of hits each month. You will also have access to all conference events—including the many built-in opportunities for networking during receptions, breaks, and meal functions. Your display space will be located in the registration area, conveniently close to the conference sessions, a perfect location for attendees to browse and talk with you about your services and products.

Reasons to participate

- Get exposure to transportation planning community in the Southeastern states and beyond
- Build relationships and learn what issues rural and small metro areas and their state partners are working on
- Present your solutions to attendees as you network throughout the conference
- Get to know the emerging national network of non-metro and small metro regional transportation planning entities

Feedback

from attendees

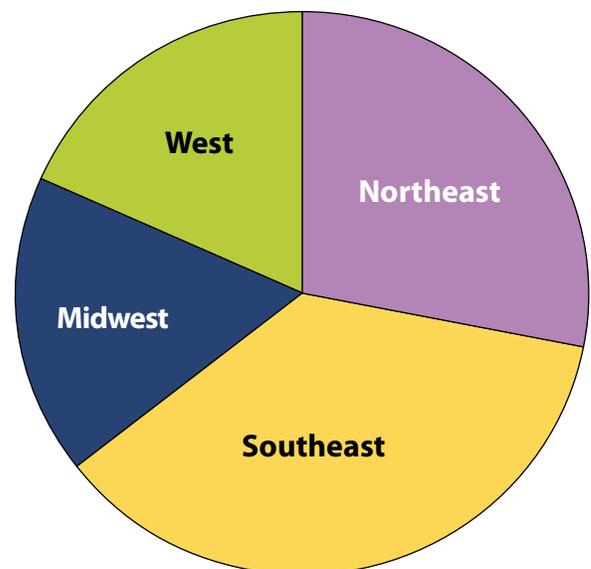

- I always enjoy the National Rural Transportation Conference. It is good to network with transportation professionals through RPO America.
- I came away with much more information and many more contacts than I would ever have expected. Thank you!
- Each year, the National Rural Transportation Conference is a great way to exchange peer information and continue networking regarding transportation issues.
- I always enjoy interacting with others at the conference. I get great ideas, and it gives me a chance to see how others organize their programs and to learn about new topics.
- Overall, I was impressed with the quality of the conference content, management, organization, and scheduling. This model seems to work well for the audience.
- Excellent conference! Very valuable information!
